As Kyiv continues to develop and expand into its periphery, neighborhoods outside of the center are becoming increasingly dynamic and unique. Kyiv's center, for obvious reasons, is the most recommended area for living for first time visitors. It encompasses many different neighborhoods, with Khreshchatyk and Maidan Nezalezhnosti commonly considered at its epicenter. The benefits of living in the center are substantial. Here lies a developed commercial infrastructure as well as a beautiful and bustling city urban landscape. Staying in the city center allows you always remain in the middle of cultural life and entertainment. There is a myriad of restaurants, which can be good both for business lunches or dinners with friends. A major advantage of the city center, especially for foreigners, is that employees in the restaurants and stores (as well as even random people on the street) are in most cases able to speak English, making life easier for those that don't speak any Russian or Ukrainian.

Please find below the description of the most popular districts and areas for renting apartments among expats.

In the next article, we will acquaint you with the beautiful Pechersk district.
